

Free Computer & TV Recycling

E-Cycle Washington is a program that provides free and responsible recycling of the following electronics:

computers (CPUs) • monitors • laptops • TVs

Computer monitors and televisions can't be thrown in the garbage because they contain lead and other heavy metals. Electronics manufacturers are taking responsibility for the cost of recycling these products at certain authorized collection points in Washington.

For an updated listing of locations offering free electronics recycling, see other side or visit:

www.kitsapgov.com/sw

Households, small businesses, and charities may use this program, but limits may apply.

For volumes greater than 10 units, please call:

1-866-779-6632

Other electronics may be recyclable for a fee at alternate locations.

Peripherals and accessories (mice, printers, copiers, scanners, and all other electrical devices, including appliances and cell phones), are not covered by the free program, but are recyclable at some locations and may require a fee.

For recycling locations call Kitsap One at (360) 337-5777 or visit www.kitsapgov.com/sw/recycle.asp
