F. Continuation of Deliberations and Recommendations: Shoreline Master Plan Inventory and Characterization – Patty Charnas, Environmental Programs Manager, DCD and Sue Donahue, Watershed Project Coordinator, DCD
Greetham reviews the SMP Inventory and Characterization process so far.

Foritano asks if during the task force deliberations was any other "peer-reviewed, best science viewpoints" asked for and/or received/considered beyond the singular one used for decision-making.

Greetham states that the task force did discuss the joint meeting in December. The task force does not have any further recommendations for the Planning Commission at this time.

Discussion is held about if the document will be revised again during the entire process.

Brown asks if we are the only ones using drift cells in this process.

Greetham states that drift cells are mentioned in the WAC. He states that Jefferson County has adopted this kind of document using drift cells.

Baglio asks about the prioritization recommendations category.

Greetham states that the WAC makes it very clear the County must consider restoration as one management option when they get down to deciding how they are going to balance the impacts of development with maintaining or improving shoreline functions. In the future they will prepare a restoration report and will consider this and other documents to prepare it.

Sommerhauser suggests changing the title of the heading to “Possible Prioritization Recommendations”.

Greetham states that there does not seem to be an objection, but defers to DOE. He clarifies the definition of restoration.

Discussion is held about restoration language in the document and in the process.

6:26:28

Brown states that there has been no peer review in this process.

Discussion is held about outside consultants and the science behind the document.

6:32:35

Sommerhauser summarizes that they have confirmed they have taken a snapshot in time from now forward. He asks what the WAC requirement or allowance for updating approval beyond this update.

Greetham states that in our view of the WAC he believes they can update. The WAC requires that they acknowledge data gaps.

A motion is made by Commissioner Sommerhauser and seconded by Commissioner Foritano to continue this item to the end of the agenda.
G. Work Study: Non-Conforming Code – Scott Diener, Policy and Planning Manager, DCD

Diener gives an overview on non-conforming code.
- Reviews the changes and additions
- Public Comments so far
- Legal Department’s Support

H. Public Hearing: Non-Conforming Code - Scott Diener, Policy and Planning Manager, DCD

Chair Paralez opens the public hearing.

Mike Gustavson, resident: He references paragraph 17.430.340 – Non-Conforming Structures, third page paragraph B that states “destroyed by any cause” and “the one year “. He recommends that they insert the words after the word cause “except in the case of natural disaster as determined by Kitsap County Board of County Commissioners”. He recommends changing line three that limits reconstruction to one year, to change it to two years. He states that a good many homes in the county have non-conforming uses. The vast majority of homes on the waterfront are built within the 100 ft. setback buffer. For the one year he states that he built a house and it took one full year to build it. He believes that it is not enough time to build a house.

Sommerhauser clarifies that the one year is not for completion of the construction, but to submit an application. He asks if it’s the Building Official or the BOCC the appropriate for the addition of that language.

Rowe-Hornbaker states that the Commissioners have the authority to declare a state of emergency.

Gustavson states that the concern he has is the smart growth agenda where the objective is to move everybody into the UGA.

Ron Eber, Rural Stakeholders group member: He states that he thinks the ordinance is an improvement from what it was. However, words have meaning, when you deem something in the ordinance as non-conforming use it is a negative. He suggests policy that states clearly the rights of existing uses. He suggests change it from “non-conforming” use to “existing use”.

Vivian Henderson, KAPO member: She states that she agrees with the other two speakers. Specifically, the language change to “existing use”.

Jackie Rosshorn: She states that non-conforming means that you can’t rebuild it from an insurance company. The bank states that they thought it means you cannot get a loan on it in Kitsap County.

Brown asks if she contacted a Land Use attorney.
She states that the bank suggested that. She did not.

Chair Paralez closes the public hearing

I. Deliberations and Recommendations: Non-Conforming Code - Scott Diener, Policy and Planning Manager, DCD

A motion is made by Commissioner Sommerhauser and seconded by Commissioner Nevins to approve the staff proposed non-conforming code.

An amendment to the motion is made by Commissioner Sommerhauser and seconded by Commissioner Nevins to change the title from “Non-Conforming Uses and Structures” to “Non-Conforming Existing Uses and Structures”.

Sommerhauser states that “non-conforming” is a general accepted legal term of state land use and activity for if anything in code that moves to enforcement. He does not want to completely remove it.

Nevins states that changing it does not solve the problem that banks and insurance companies do not understand that these are legal structures.

Foritano asks what would happen if they changed to existing use. He would rather not give the banks any option to deny. He asks if it is locked into law.

Baglio states that “existing uses” refers to any structure that is up and in use. He states that changing the title will not achieve anything.

Diener states that they have discussed with legal and they state that it is traditional land use language which is the same language as the state has adopted.

Sommerhauser withdraws the amendment to the motion. The second agrees.

7:14:15

An amendment to the motion is made by Commissioner Baglio and seconded by Commissioner Foritano to accept Norm Olson’s proposed modifications, to accept the case by case review by the director based on extenuating circumstances, include the earthquake language, and clarification of the paragraph to state that they have one year to submit a building application.

Diener asks if they are suggesting that there be one year to submit a building application and two years to build it.

Baglio states that is sounds like there is one year to have a counter complete application.

Diener states that staff would need to re-phrase it so it is clear that the intent is that you have year in which to apply for a building permit.
Brown states that on Norm Olson’s comments section 020, he expresses concern about putting the director in a position of having his fingers on all these non-conforming uses.

Diener states that the next sentence provides that escape. He agrees that the language needs some word-smithing.

F. Continuation of Deliberations and Recommendations: Shoreline Master Plan Inventory and Characterization – Patty Charnas, Environmental Programs Manager, DCD and Sue Donahue, Watershed Project Coordinator, DCD

Greetham states that changing the title of the restoration column is acceptable. He has confirmed that the document can be a living breathing document as long as it’s understood that it is used to move forward and it is a foundation for the next step.

Sommerhauser asks where it will say that.

Baglio states that if there are more steps to the adoption of this it is difficult is when you get to the regulatory portion and its difficult to adopt without knowing all the components.

Greetham states that this is one of several steps. This document will be used in the next step of the process.

Baglio states that he would have liked to have looked at a number of the drift cells as examples and run through the ranking and criteria. He asks to go through that process moving forward.

Foritano asks if any of the major shareholders represented by taskforce members bring in any other body of scientific research that differed from the scientific anchor that was used for the study; for example, the report from Dr. Flora.

Greetham states that he doesn’t believe there are any other reports. There is a fair amount of debate on that report and it hasn’t been peer reviewed, but there is a large amount of discussion back and forth.

Nevins states that there is a document that has been accepted by the County Commissioners that helps the department decide whether or not they have acceptable science in front of them. There are opinions that are based on science reading that are different from what qualifies as straight science.
Action Item: Paralez asks for a simple graphic road map of this entire process, including where the Planning Commission will be engaged.

7:32:20

A motion is made by Commissioner Sommerhauser and seconded by Commissioner Brown to accept the SMP Characterization and Inventory document with two changes: 1. the addition in to the tables currently labeled “Prioritization Recommendations” to “Possible Recommendations”, and 2. the addition of an introductory paragraph statement indicating how this document may be updated.

Brown questions the use of prioritization. He recommends “Possible Recommendations”
