

Your reactions can be slowed,

Cannabis can impair alertness and reaction time.

Driving under the influence can increase the risk of crashing.

using cannabis before you hit the road.

Leave cannabis in original, unopened packaging.

Keep cannabis where you can't reach—like the trunk.

If you drive while you're high,

It's illegal to use cannabis while riding as a passenger.

you could get a DUI.

105 deadly crashes in 2016 involved a driver who tested positive for cannabis.

An increase from 91 fatal crashes in Washington state during the previous year.

Know this about Cannabis

When it comes to cannabis, safety is essential. That's why driving under the influence of cannabis is illegal. Whether you're driving or just along for the ride, keep cannabis in its original, unopened package and out of reach. Because if you drive while under the influence, you're risking not only significant legal consequences, but also harming others and yourself. So, for your safety and the safety of others, it's important not to drive after using.

For more on choosing a safer ride, visit KnowThisAboutCannabis.org

* Source information for statements can be found at KnowThisAboutCannabis.org/Sources

There can be no excusing,

Cannabis affects coordination behind the wheel.

It's illegal to use cannabis while riding as a passenger.

driving after cannabis using.

Keep cannabis in original, unopened packaging.

Drive with cannabis out of reach—like in the trunk.

It's a crime, a bad decision,

Mixing alcohol and cannabis can increase the risk of crashes.

you could cause harm or a collision.

105 deadly crashes in 2016 involved a driver who tested positive for cannabis.

An increase from 91 fatal crashes in Washington state during the previous year.

Know this about Cannabis

When it comes to cannabis, safety is essential. Driving under the influence is illegal—and it's also dangerous. Cannabis can impair judgment, alertness, and reaction time. And driving while under the influence could lead to harmful—possibly deadly—collisions. Which could mean significant legal penalties for you. By choosing a safer ride, you can keep yourself—and others on the road—out of harm's way.

For more on safe driving, visit KnowThisAboutCannabis.org

* Source information for statements can be found at KnowThisAboutCannabis.org/Sources

Keep cannabis
locked up tight,

Lock up cannabis to prevent teen use.

far away and out of sight,

Use cannabis where kids can't see.

Keep cannabis
where kids can't reach.

of little eyes,
who just might,

Leave on
"Not for Kids" warning labels.

Keep cannabis in original packaging.

think it's for them
and take a bite.

Compared to 2016,
calls to the Washington Poison Center involving kids 0-5 increased by 57.7%.

Know this about Cannabis

When it comes to cannabis, safety is essential. It can be hard even for adults to see when edible treats include THC. That's why cannabis-infused products can be dangerous for those who may think it's regular food. Some teens may even search for cannabis products at home. But you can keep everyone—from kids to pets—out of risk by storing your cannabis safely. So, keep your cannabis where kids can't reach, in original packaging, and with "Not for Kids" labels intact.

For more on safe storage, visit KnowThisAboutCannabis.org

* Source information for statements can be found at KnowThisAboutCannabis.org/Sources